

I motion the FCC to dismiss RM-10811 for the reason that it is inaccurate and exaggerated in it's statistics stating that CW is the second most popular mode of operation and that it is the only feasible means of communication in a disaster.

If there were such a great disaster that morse code was needed, the only technology left would be smoke signals if humans survive the event.

I also foresee that if RM-10811 was to "win", that in 10 years or less, most of that precious HF spectrum will be auctioned to a corporate giant with new technology and vision of the future, not nostalgia or sentiment.

I am only being realistic in the matter and keeping this short unlike 14 pages of smoke and mirrors.

Thank You
